The aim of the good doctor is twofold to prevent and to cure disease people have faith in their physicians at least enough to call for their help when sick, why should they not call upon them to prevent and to check the spread of disease among their children in the public schools? A sound mind in an unsound body is the object of health supervision.

Miss Blanche Rossman had charge of the exhibits and also of the literature table which contained many valuable helps and suggestions for the care of the babies and children. Unfortunately Miss Rossman was called upon for professional services and had only about three minutes for her talk which was devoted to the baby's bath, she denounced some harmful particulars in this process and called attention to some of the instructions given by Doctor Morgan on Friday evening.

Health supervision was first introduced in the schools of Boston. Massachuetts, for the purpose of controling diptheria, scarlet fever and small pox epidemics among the children; the results obtained were so satisfactory that it has been taken up by the schools of other cities and states. In Ohio the State makes provision for preventing and stamping out hog preventing and stamping out hog cholera, while but little has been done pliment the local committee on the to solve the child problems in the

by the child problems in the State.

Dr. Brockway spoke of the splendid work that has been done by the Child Welfare Bureau in Washington and then called attention to the fact that not more than half the children who began in the public schools of the country received the benefit of the grammar grades. There is a marked decrease in enrollment between the primary and intermediate grades and the grammar grades, the speaker stated that it was due to two causes i. e. illness among the children and the indifference of parents; this is one of the principal reasons for health supervision in the schools. All education is based on the physical ability of the child. Inferior brain cells must necessarily limit the education. In order to have normal brain cells the body must be kept healthy.

Dr. Brockway gave in some detail the methods of health supervision in the schools of Toledo and gave high praise to the work of the visiting nurses without whom, supervision would amount to very little. Medical examinations are made by all children of the first, fourth and eighth grades. One of the advantages of supervision spoken of, was that children concerning the annual grades. One of the advantages of startling statistics; among them were supervision spoken of, was that children whom the parents would consider in normal health were often found to have some trouble or ailment that needed attention; parents are notified and the family doctor may be called into the home to give the medical aid that is needed. Bad teeth were spoken of as a menace to health and the examination of the essential points in the supervision of the public school children of Toledo.

The speaker urged open air rooms bility can only be overcome by the for pale and sickly children, spoke of the importance of seats to fit the chil-control of marriage by legal enactdren and the correct posture in the ment. seat. He gave his own experience with twelve different makes of formaldehyde candles which were used to fumigate rooms but which failed to destroy "Typhoid bugs and Diptheria germs" showing that too great reliance cannot be placed upon this

Harry, only son of Levi and Martha Boyd Jameson, was born at Richmond, Indiana, January 29th, 1870; he moved with his parents to Celina Ohio where his father published a newspaper and which continued to be his home until 1892 when he came with his father to Wauseon and was associated with him in publishing the Fulton County Tribune since 1892. Mr. Jameson's home has been in Wauseon and during the twenty-four vears of his residence here he has made for himself many friends not only in Wauseon but in the entire county. It is doubtful if any one person was ever better known through the county or if any one person was better acquainted not only with the people of the county but as well with the ration of their farms than was Mr. Jameson.

He entered his father's printing tassessor for Fulton county, a position that he was forced to resign after a few months service on account of his failing health. For many years Mr. Jameson was an attendant and associated with the Congregational church of Wauseon, his father and mother being members of that he was forced to resign after a few months service on account of his failing health.
